HE HAS HIS SMILE

INSPECTOR WILLIAMS KEEPS AS COOL AS CHRISTMAS.

He stands the fire of Mr. Goff's interrogations with most provoking good humor—He doesn't know much, though—Mr. Goff loses his temper.

New York, Dec. 26.—Next to Superintendent Byrnes, Inspector Alexander Williams is looked upon by the residents of this city as the man who knows every detail in connection with the police department of New York. It was made known that he would be called as a witness before the Lexow committee today and there were numerous applicants for admission to the court room. Lawyers, doctors, bankers, brokers and men about town scrambled for seats to hear the famous "Knight of the Club" and Inspector Goff cross foils in a wordy fencing match.

During the early part of the proceedings Shively, a former wardman, who was Policeman Hasey's partner in the Twelfth precinct, was examined, and he told about his collections of bribe money from saloonkeepers, keepers of houses of ill fame and policy shops. He accused Captain Webb, retired, Doherty, Eakins and Schultz of receiving the bribes. During Schultz' regime he said that the price of policy shops was raised 10 per cent and in nine months he paid over to Schultz about $4,500. Detective Sergeant Phil Riley and James Von Griesheim were called after recess and they said that they attended the races at Saratoga during their vacations and that they received money from the owners of the track for keeping "crooked persons" away from it, but he denied ever having divided the money they got with any police official in New York.

"What did the concerns here in New York pay?" he was asked.
"Pool rooms $50 a month, policy shops $20, liquor dealers $20 and houses of ill fame $10. The average monthly collection was $400."
"What was the highest amount you ever received in a month?"
"Six hundred dollars."
"Witness said that two policy dealers paid for the police in a month?"
"And you handed all money to Captain Webb?"
"Yes, and he returned me a portion of it."
"And if these people who had paid violated the law, they would not be interfered with?"
"They were not."
"Witness said this money was paid as a bribe. The police never interfered with any of these houses unless there were charges of assault and battery, robbery, or something of that kind coming from them. Replying to the chairman, the witness said that the proprietor of a house who did not pay had to close."
Captain Martens was then recalled and questioned by Mr. Goff as to whether his wife had yet returned from Northport.
"She has gone to the house of her brother-in-law, who is dying," said Capt. Martens.
Captain Martens promised to have his wife in court tomorrow morning.
"Bring your bank books with you," said Mr. Goff.
"My bank books?" repeated the Captain.
"I have none."
"BRING THEM ANYHOW."
"Well, I want you to bring them," said Mr. Goff.
"All right," said Martens.
"Also tell your wife to bring her bank books and check books, or she may have," demanded Mr. Goff.
Dr. Webster testified to the inability of a man named Hollingsworth to come to court, owing to trouble with his eyes.

A murmur went around the court when Mr. Goff called Inspector Williams. The inspector took his seat and let his room around the room and finally fixed them on Mr. Goff.
"When did you join the police force?"
"In 1888. I was then 24 years of age and a ship carpenter. I had been employed in China and Japan and had changed for a dock yard in Shanghai."
"When you joined the force were you a poor man or in good circumstances?"
"Fairly well off. I owned the house in Leonard street, Brooklyn, in which I lived. I think it was worth $15,000 or $20,000."
"Had you any other property?"
"Yes, some lots in Japan."
"As a matter of information how do they measure building lots there?"
"I think 100 feet by 25 feet. I don't remember."
"You sold your Brooklyn house. How much did you get for it?"
"I got $5,000."
"What bank was the rest of your money?"
"It was not in any bank. It was in bills of exchange on English banks. I had a master of information how do they measure building lots there?"
"I think 100 feet by 25 feet. I don't remember."

"I got $5,000."
"What bank was the rest of your money?"
"It was not in any bank. It was in bills of exchange on English banks. I had a master of information how do they measure building lots there?"
"I think 100 feet by 25 feet. I don't remember."
"You sold your Brooklyn house. How much did you get for it?"
"I got $5,000."
